The Woodlands, TX (PRWEB) September 13, 2009 -- ProtectMyRetirementAccount.com has recently launched their website and introduced a revolutionary new long-term market timing system called AccuTrend that helps protect investors from major stock market declines.

ProtectMyRetirementAccount.com's AccuTrend market timing system provides investors with a highly reliable way to time the stock market. This system issues very few timing signals and is designed for serious, long-term investors who wish to protect their retirement savings from major stock market declines while enjoying the significant returns associated with stock investing.

$10,000 invested in a stock mutual fund based on the S&P 500 Index since January 1987 would be worth well over $100,000 today by using the AccuTrend system compared to only $42,000 by using the traditional buy-and-hold method of stock investing.

"Millions of investors have had their retirement dreams destroyed by the recent stock market crash, even investors who were very well diversified." said Joseph Soltra, CEO and Chief Technical Analyst at ProtectMyRetirementAccount.com. "In these volatile financial times, diversification is simply not enough. Those facing retirement who are looking to preserve capital as well as enjoy significant returns are recognizing the severe limitations of traditional buy-and-hold stock investing."

Continued Mr. Soltra, "What makes our proprietary AccuTrend market timing system so unique is that it focuses strictly on the long-term trend of the stock market. Because of this, we are able to time the stock market with much greater accuracy. Our extensive market research has shown us that virtually all other market timing services try to time every twist and turn of the stock market, which results in extremely poor accuracy."

Due to the long-term nature of this system, the time frame between timing signals can range anywhere from a few months to several years, making this system inappropriate for traders.
